Mad at God (Part Two)

In part one of this story, we saw Roberto, the in-home caregiver and contractor, race through the Camp Fire in his Suburban SUV the morning of Thursday November 8. He drove to Magalia to save two of his elderly in-home patients. He picked up a disoriented elderly man. "I was mad at God!" he tells us. "How can he take Paradise?"

Now back home in Paradise, he bangs on the doors of his unaware neighbors. One man needs to be carried to the car. The man's wife drives them away.

Roberto's house is on fire. He suddenly has a plan to save his other two pickup trucks.

He drives his Suburban a block, and parks it. He runs back and gets into his black Silverado pickup and drives it a block ahead of the Suburban, and parks it. He runs back and gets into his white Silverado pickup and drives it a block ahead of the black Silverado, and parks it. Repeat. He will leap-frog his three vehicles to safety.

At each stop he bangs on doors. At Nunneley and Sawmill a market is literally exploding.

He picks up two more disoriented old men. "I ran to as many houses as I could," said Roberto. "I called to God, 'If there is a Superman, send him now!'" Safeway is on fire. Another market is blowing up. He helps another disoriented old man into the black Silverado.

Roberto gets his one-man caravan to the Performing Arts Center. Firemen are protecting the space. The sky is black. Fire everywhere.

Roberto is going to make a run in his Suburban down Clark Road. He asks his passengers to join him. "They all said they would rather stay there in Paradise. Die if they must," said Roberto.

Everyone survived. Roberto made it to Chico at about 3:00. "I think God put some Superman in me," says Roberto. I have not a mark or scratch."

I asked him if he is still mad at God. "Maybe not as much," says Roberto.
