When I was younger, we would go boating in the delta outside of Stockton. Once, it was raining and my sister and I started laughing and could not stop. It made my parents so angry, especially my dad, but they got over it and we had a lot of fun.

A two-week summer vacation at Yellowstone National Park. It was when they let you feed the bears. Almost everyone who pulled over to the roadside fed the bears.

Back in the late-'80s, a buddy and I drove around the back roads of Wisconsin looking for fruit stands with the perfect corn and watermelon. We rated them, then bought bags and bags and bags of sweetcorn and invited all our friends and fed everybody.

Riding downhill on a mountain bike at Northstar [California Resort] in Tahoe. You just go up to the lift and they load your bike so you don't have to peddle going up. You only do the downhill part, which is gnarly and fast.
