

Any conspiracy theory seem plausible to you?

The one about JFK. I really don't believe some random person just assassinated him. I feel it was set up as part of a higher plan. Oh, and O.J. [Simpson] did it. That's a conspiracy as well.

Marilou Watson
farmers' market vendor

I'm honestly not convinced that the Camp Fire was an accident. Some things just don't add up. Like the way a whole block of houses all burned, but the mailboxes all remain and the recycling containers were not touched. It feels like an attack.

Carl Schultz mechanic

I don't think it's merely a theory. It's a conspiracy fact about the high-altitude aerosol spraying by forces unknown, or the military-industrial complex. It is changing and weaponizing our weather and exacerbating climate change.

Cecilia Pace nurse

I don't really believe in the conspiracy theories I hear. I hear a lot about them, but they don't resonate with me and they don't have enough evidence. They're just used to get people's emotions worked up without a concrete solution.

- Market exposure with no risk of principal loss when held to maturity
- Issued by Large National Banks
- FDIC Insurance Coverage up to the statutory limit

Market-linked CDs are typically longer-term investments. FDIC insurance is subject to FDIC limits. Principal invested in excess of FDIC limits is not insured and is subject to the credit risk of the issuer. Principal protection only applies if the CDs are held to maturity. If not held to maturity, a market-linked CD is subject to market risk, and trading in the secondary market may be thin or even nonexistent, and the price per CD may be less than par. Total payment at maturity may be less than what would be received if you had invested in the underlying asset(s) directly. Some market-linked CDs may limit participation in the underlying asset(s). Market Linked CD returns may vary from the indices' or assets' actual performance. Additional risks may apply based on the specific issue.
