Fiction 59

Can you tell a story in 59 words—
no more,
no fewer?

The Chico News & Review's annual Fiction 59 flash-fiction contest is back. Submit your 59-word stories today for the chance to have your work published in the annual Fiction 59 issue of the CN&R, on stands Oct. 24. Winners will also be invited to share their works during a live reading at The Bookstore (118 Main St.).

NEW THIS YEAR: Six-Word Stories

Go really micro with your fiction and tell a story in only six words. Here's a famous example (possibly by Ernest Hemingway):

For sale: baby shoes, never worn.

Please do not include a title with six-word story.

Six-word stories will not be separated by age category.

All other rules for Fiction 59 apply.

For submission guidelines, visit newsreview.com/fiction59

DEADLINE FOR ENTRIES IS WEDNESDAY, OCT. 9, AT 11:59 P.M.
