

Do you have a Super Bowl pick?

I'm leaning heavily toward the [New England] Patriots. Mainly due to the preparation time coach [Bill] Belichick and Tom Brady put into the game. [Brady] may not be physically the most dominant, but he's a master of the game.

I want to see the [Kansas City] Chiefs play the [Minnesota] Vikings in the Super Bowl. I think quarterback Patrick Mahomes is going to lead the Chiefs to the Super Bowl. The Vikings have a stacked defense, a great running back, Dalvin Cook, and powerful receivers. They just need to work on their quarterback.

You can never count out the Patriots with an experienced quarterback like Tom Brady, who has been doing it for so many years. He never seems to fail.

I think the NFL is going to cheat for the Patriots as they always do. But they're going to face my boy Aaron Rodgers, the quarterback for the Green Bay Packers, and somehow he's going to come out with the win.

- Market exposure with no risk of principal loss when held to maturity
- Issued by Large National Banks
- FDIC Insurance Coverage up to the statutory limit

Market-linked CDs are typically longer-term investments. FDIC insurance is subject to FDIC limits. Principal invested in excess of FDIC limits is not insured and is subject to the credit risk of the issuer. Principal protection only applies if the CDs are held to maturity. If not held to maturity, a market-linked CD is subject to market risk, and trading in the secondary market may be thin or even nonexistent, and the price per CD may be less than par. Total payment at maturity may be less than what would be received if you had invested in the underlying asset(s) directly. Some market-linked CDs may limit participation in the underlying asset(s). Market Linked CD returns may vary from the indices' or assets' actual performance. Additional risks may apply based on the specific issue.
