Rape Crisis Intervention & Prevention

Adults who experienced sexual violence as a child are not alone. No matter what, the abuse was not their fault.

Adult survivors live with these memories for a long time. Some survivors keep the abuse a secret for many years. Often when people are in recovery, experience partner abuse or if their perpetrator dies, all of these unwanted feelings come flooding back. They may have tried to speak to an adult or felt there was no one they could trust when the abuse occurred. For these reasons and many others, the effects of child sexual violence can occur many years after the abuse has ended. There is no set timeline for dealing with, and recovering from, this experience.

If someone you care about suffered sexual violence as a child your reaction can have a big impact on the survivor. It is not always easy to know what to say, but you can help the healing process begin.

Rape Crisis intervention and Prevention is the perfect resource and are always there to help and listen. Open and affirming to all, regardless of gender, gender identity or sexual orientation.
