

Best song ever?

"Bohemian Rhapsody," [by Queen]. I like the entire aesthetic of it—I love the song. [I'd listen to it] everyday; it's just a happy song.

The one that means the most to me—and it's going to sound cheesy because it's one that everybody would say—is "Imagine," by John Lennon. The reason is because of its depth of understanding of human nature and just trying to look forward to a time when we come together as a people and think about others as opposed to thinking of ourselves—look beyond ourselves and look toward us a human race.

Oh man, that's a hard one. "Are we Still Friends?" by Tyler the Creator. I love that song. It just sounds nice before I'm about to go to bed.

therapist

Oh boy, that's hard. I want to say a Beatles song, but there's so many. I'll say "My Girl," by The Temptations. I grew up with that.
