That's a hard one, actually. I just go to Mexican places a lot, honestly, [especially] Atzlan. I get tacos; I like that place a lot.

Burgers and Brew is always pretty good, [but] there is a restaurant right here in downtown, Pho Bonsa—they serve the best pho. It's really nice and pretty unique.

Tommy Watson
student

For me, honestly, Panda Express—orange chicken.

Zachary Bennett
grad student

Actually, I really like going to Pita Pit, usually for lunch. It's cheap and it's healthy. I usually get a turkey pita. I also frequently go to Smokin' Mo's down the street. They have probably one of my favorite barbecue burgers.

numerous accidents have occurred on Vallombrosa in which cars have crashed into residential properties. Why does the city of Chico find this acceptable?

Sharing the love

I wanted to give a shout out and promote some good local news. The city of Chico and Butte County Fire Safe Council (BCFSC), with the assistance from the California Conservation Corps, have partnered to begin reducing the fire fuel and hazard along Little Chico Creek. Though in progress, the work done is impressive. Many of the private owners along Little Chico Creek have not done any clearing, which contributes to the fire risk, but the city and BCFSC are attempting to help where possible.

In a time where the city gets pounded on and criticized for so much, here are some positive highlights. Linda Herman and Jim Houtman have worked hard to collaborate and break down some of the barriers that bureaucracy has created over the years.

One correction; one update:

In last month's Arts DEVO column (Aug. 3, 2023), in the blurb regarding $326,850 in funding for the Upstate Creative Corps program, one of the organizing groups, Nevada County Arts Council, was incorrectly identified as Nevada Arts Council.

In the same column, the Feb. 3 concert at Laxson Auditorium with Marcia Ball, Angela Strehli and Lou Ann Barton that was previewed has been canceled by the artists and is no longer on the Chico Performances schedule. For the latest on the season, visit chicoperformances.com.

Both items have been corrected online.
