

Erection Test Results Uncover a New Sex Pill That Works at Any Age

Studies find that men taking the active ingredient in a new pill perform better in two key erection tests while also receiving several other sexual health benefits.

For Immediate Release

US – One of the year's biggest breakthroughs at the Nutra Ingredients Awards stands to transform the lives of millions of men who want to stay sexually active with age – and don't want Viagra to do so.

The award-winning ingredient, EnoStim™, blew judges away after posting sensational scores in two, widely-recognized Erection Tests.

The tests showed that men taking the ingredient experienced a 72% increase in erection hardness while enjoying numerous other sexual health benefits.

Several companies have engaged the makers of EnoStim™ for the exclusive rights.

Just recently, they have agreed to terms with Biocentric Health who is now marketing the ingredient in their new sex pill called Eroxin.

Dr. Allen Green, a medical advisor to the company, says he is excited to bring Eroxin to market as it solves a major problem in the industry – a sex pill developed for daily use.

"We've been waiting for something like this for years" shares Green referring to Eroxin with EnoStim™.

"We are so limited on the recommendations we can make to sexually frustrated men looking for drug-free alternatives. Eroxin is something we can now offer confidently."

Targets What Science Calls Your "Erection Mechanisms"

Green shares that Eroxin targets the three main erection mechanisms in men.

The first is the brain which sends chemical signals to the penis. The second are the nerves that carry the messages. And lastly, the circulatory system, which triggers a rush blood directly into the penis.

"EnoStim™ stimulates a chain of events that are absolutely vital for sex, especially an erection hard enough to have it" shares Green. "That's why it's performed so remarkable in clinical tests and why it's the basis for Eroxin."

Men Score Off The Charts in TWO Critical Erection Tests

There are two primary tests that physicians use when determining if a new remedy helps or hurts an erection.

The first is called EHS (Erection Hardness Score) and the second IIEF (International Index of Erectile Function).

The tests are comprised of questions with multiple choice answers ranging from 1-5. Essentially, the higher the score, the better the erection.

For example, "how often were you able to get an erection during sexual activity?" and "when you attempted intercourse, how often were you able to penetrate your partner" are the first two questions asked on the IIEF Test.

Remarkably, men saw their scores, on both tests, skyrocket after taking the EnoStim™ in Eroxin.

"What was most impressive to me was the 72% improvement in erection hardness. That's what sex is all about – getting and staying hard" explains Green.

Additionally, at the end of the week study, men were interviewed and asked a series of questions. The first was whether they'd recommend EnoStim™ to a friend. Over 70% answered with an enthusiastic "YES!"

When asked, they also shared that they were much more confident in bed.

So, instead of constantly worrying that they just left their partner disappointed, they couldn't wait to have more sex! And they knew the women felt the same way.

"I'm a 52-year-old man and Eroxin [with EnoStim™] really helps me keep up with my much younger girlfriend. It has helped our sex life without having to go through the embarrassing other medical solutions. I definitely plan on taking this product for a long time" shares Ken S, Eroxin user.

Men Score Dramatically Higher in Two Critical Erection Tests

Eroxin is the new sex pill which contains the award-winning ingredient EnoStim™. Studies show it increases erection hardness among other sexual health benefits.

A Clinical Dose in Each Capsule Guarantees a 72% Increase Hardness and Firmness*

Two key ingredients make up Eroxin.

The first is the patented ingredient EnoStim™ which makes up over 50% of the formula. The second is a plant-based extract called Fenugreek.

Both are found in a scientific dose in each tablet.

Research shows that as men get older, the circulatory systems tends to fail. With less blood flow to the penis, erections become weak and often too soft for sex.

At the same exact time, testosterone levels are shown to decline due to increased activity of the enzyme aromatase.

As less testosterone is produced and estrogen takes over the body, men begin to experience exhaustion, muscle loss, fat gain (man boobs) and a plummeting libido.

The EnoStim™ in Eroxin has been shown to increase nitric oxide levels in penile tissue and increase blood vessel diameter by 50%, allowing blood to flow into your penis for stronger, harder erection.

Combined with Fenugreek, a natural testosterone booster, men see additional benefits of sexual health such as more muscle, a stronger sex drive and major boost in energy and stamina.
