

ASKED AT SHINE CAFE: Your song of the summer?

ELISE WEBER
photography professor

I don't know any names of songs or bands but I do love music—well, good music. I know Triathlon, which is a surf dream pop band I would say, and I saw them recently at Harlow's and the show was phenomenal.

I have been relistening to "Problems" by Petit Biscuit. I think it's cool because when I first listened to it I was going through a transitional period in my life then, and now I'm experiencing another one.

KC SHANE
barista and musician

Recently, I have been listening to a lot of the Hozier Pandora playlist, so that kind of avenue like soul folk-rock. His famous song is "Take Me To Church," so I been bumping that a lot lately because I'm going to cover it.

I have to go with "Man To Man" by Dorian Electra because it's such a career-powering song, which I love, and it has nice chill vibes, which I like to drive to.

cafeteria worker

"Hunnybee" by Unknown Mortal Orchestra. It has an indie lo-fi vibe and it's pretty slow. I like listening to it when I'm driving, or anytime I'm outside. It seems like a song to enjoy nature to and hang out in the summer.

HALCYON CLAY
artist

[Jaden] Smith just dropped a new album and there's this one song called ["Summertime in Paris"] with [Willow] Smith. The lyrics are about falling in love in summertime, and who doesn't want to do that?
