

ASKED AT TEMPLE COFFEE ON K STREET: Favorite holiday tradition?

SARAH AKIYAMA

My family and I will go see the Christmas lights that they string up in the Fabulous Forties and drive through there. I also like going to [Temple] to get their holiday drinks.

I read A Tale of Two Cities by Charles Dickens ... I don't know why because it's not a Christmas book, but when I was in school I would start the book during winter break.

I'm Russian and I have a 100-plus relatives in Sacramento that I'm really close with ... so around Christmas time we have a musical performance with all the kids, and the kids who participated get a present.

For Thanksgiving, my family sometimes does a cook-off. So everyone will bring a different meal, and I usually make a vegan one because I don't eat meat.

When I was growing up, we had this quilt calendar we put on the wall and this little stuffed bear we moved room to room until it reached the December 25th.

My family and I all get together to watch Christmas Vacation while drinking eggnog, hot chocolate and eat a bunch of food.
